Y. W. C. A. DRIVE TO RAISE $2500 IS LAUNCHED TODAY

All Communities In County Will Be Canvassed This Week For Subscriptions.

The campaign to raise $2500, half of the budget necessary to conduct the affairs of the Young Women's Christian Association, opened today in Gettysburg with a luncheon of the forty solicitors at the Y. W. C. A. building at noon. The drive will be continued throughout this week and every section of Adams county will be visited by workers in the various communities.

Mrs. Myrtle Bell is chairman of the drive in Gettysburg and assisting her are a number of teams captained by Mrs. John Brehm, Mrs. W. Preston Hull, Mrs. John Cronk, Miss Hattie Krauth, Mrs. Kenderton Lynch, Mrs. Mark Eckert, Mrs. Jessie Easterday, Mrs. John McIlhenny, Mrs. H. D. Hoover, Mrs. C. N. Gitt, Mrs. Ralph Purdy and Mrs. Earl Deatrick.

The speakers at the luncheon today were Mrs. M. Hadwin Fischer, county association president; Miss Edna Eicholtz, who was in charge of the drive last year; Mrs. Bell and Miss Metta Mitchell, secretary.

250 Girls In Clubs
Miss Mitchell in her talk stressed the fact that more than 250 girls in all communities of the county are now engaged in Girl Reserve work and in addition there are 100 young women in four clubs, 416 adult members of the county association and 56 teen-age girls who attended summer camp at Mont Alto park last summer.

The association also conducts three cooking courses and an eight weeks' course in story-telling for girls under twelve. Miss Mitchell told the workers, and at the tourists bureau, 85 persons were directed to rooms in lodging houses of Gettysburg.

The solicitors in the county districts will make a canvass of their territories during the week, and will report to Miss Edna Albert on Friday night, when it is hoped that the necessary funds will have been raised. Miss Albert is county finance chairman.

The team captains in the other communities of the county are: Mrs. (Continued on Second Page.)

YOUTH WHO SHOT SELF IS SINKING

Sheldon Richardson Kept Under Opiates at Warner Hospital; Fear to Operate.

Watched over constantly by friends, relatives and nurses to prevent him harming himself or others in his moments of delirium, Sheldon Richardson, 21-year-old Iron Springs farmer, who shot himself in the head at his home, Friday evening, was losing ground at the Warner hospital today.

Because of the nearness of the .22 calibre bullet to the brain, hospital authorities hesitate to operate, fearing that an operation might hasten death, which appears to be inevitable. The cartridge entered the young man's head back of the right ear and plunged an inch or two into the skull, lodging above the ear.

Had the rifle been high-powered, the young man would probably have died instantly, hospital attendants said, pointing out that a .22 calibre cartridge is one of the least powerful manufactured. The rifle with which Richardson shot himself was secured by the young man from Andy Reese, his brother-in-law, in a trade three weeks ago.

Members of the Richardson family who visited the wounded man at the hospital today were still at loss for a reason for the young man's act, declaring that he had a good home and had no trouble that they knew of. Richardson shot himself while alone in the kitchen of his home, Friday evening, after singing "I have a jolly good home, boys."

Richardson, who has been unconscious since he was brought to the local hospital Saturday morning, just before noon, is being kept quiet with opiates. When the sedatives wear off, he becomes delirious and difficult to manage, and hospital authorities have asked friends and relatives of Richardson to stay with him day and night.

Gettysburg Lures

Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, Man Says This Is The Best Town He Has Ever In.

There was at least one of the many thousands of visitors to Gettysburg last summer who went away a booster; who was caught in the lure of the community and who actually believes this is "the best town" in the country. He came here for the first time last Memorial Day; he returned on Labor Day, bringing a friend and spent two weeks, and he is now planning a third trip for the near future. Each time he was a guest at the Eagle hotel, where the hospitality dispensed contributed largely to his favorable impressions of the community, and where he made the acquaintance of Harry Holtzworth, to whom he has written the following letter:

Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.
Mr. J. H. Holtzworth,
Eagle Hotel,
Gettysburg, Pa.

Dear Mr. Holtzworth:

Well, I could not stand it any longer. Do you know my feet are beginning to itch to pat the sidewalks of Gettysburg, the best town I was ever in. So as soon as the sun shines on both sides of the fence, you just shake up the straw in Stall 133, and I will bed down for a while.

We were at Antietam for two days after we left Gettysburg. It is a very nice place. We are having some very cold weather here.

If you see the old guard at the Virginia monument, give him my best regards. He is sure a good scout. Also remember me to your night clerk and the two porters.

Respectfully,
W. A. Kelso,
Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

STATE WILL BE ADVERTISED AS TOURIST CENTER

$35,000 Will Be Spent Through Hotel Association In Promoting Advantages.

Henry M. Scharf, manager of the Hotel Gettysburg, was re-elected vice president of the Pennsylvania Tourist Hotels association, representing the central Lincoln Highway district of the state, at the annual convention at the Penn-Alto hotel, Altoona, Friday and Saturday. All the former officers were unanimously re-elected.

W. A. Leech, proprietor of the Hotel Washington, Chambersburg, is president of the organization.

Approximately one hundred and twenty-five Pennsylvania hotel representatives attended the meeting and subscribed $17,000 to a publicity fund to advertise the state of Pennsylvania in an effort to attract more tourists to Pennsylvania.

In subscribing this amount the Pennsylvania Tourist Hotels association placed itself squarely behind the State Publicity bureau of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce. This bureau will administer the fund.

To Spend $35,000

It is expected that other interests and communities in the state will match the fund raised in Altoona and on this basis the state advertising fund available for 1928 should be in the neighborhood of $35,000 or $40,000.

The State Publicity bureau has been functioning for the last four years and last year with a budget of $15,000 distributed over 625,000 pieces of Pennsylvania literature and established over 65,000 definite contacts. As compared with publicity bureaus of other states the Pennsylvania organization's endeavors showed far greater results and better averages, although the amount of money available was considerably less.

"The action of the Tourist Hotels association illustrated distinctly the modern trend of the thoughts of hotelmen in Pennsylvania in promoting business," stated Mr. Scharf in telling of the action of the convention.

"Advertising of this nature has two different aspects. First, there must be advertising of a general nature that will bring motorists into (Continued on Second Page)

COL. DEEMS WILL INSPECT R. O. T. C.

Both Companies at College Will be Inspected on Drill Field Tuesday Morning.

Inspection of the R. O. T. C. unit at Gettysburg college will be conducted Tuesday morning by Lieut.-Col. Clarence Deems, Jr., U. S. A., in charge of all R. O. T. C. units in the Third Corps area. Colonel Deems will arrive here this evening from Western Maryland college where he conducted an inspection today. He will be the guest of honor at a smoker at the science hall. A feature of the smoker will be the showing of actual pictures of several offensives by American troops during the World War, released by the Army Signal corps. The pictures will be shown by John D. Keith. Dr. H. W. A. Hanson will be one of the speakers at the smoker this evening.

The R. O. T. C. unit will be inspected on the drill field tomorrow morning at 7:45 o'clock and from 9 until 12 o'clock Colonel Deems will inspect the records and equipment at the college. At noon Colonel Deems will be entertained at luncheon by Capt. and Mrs. W. G. Morris, Capt. and Mrs. E. H. Malone, Cadet Major Ross T. Bell, Cadet Captains John Ringwald and Richard Shay.

The inspection, which is an annual one, is for the purpose of determining those colleges and universities to be inspected by the War Department representatives in the spring. In all the colleges and universities in this area which are inspected by Colonel Deems but 40 per cent of those rated in the upper half can be recommended for the federal inspection. The War Department board then selects 50 per cent of those recommended in the army areas for the distinguished college rating.

News and Comment by THE EDITOR

This is a week of birthday anniversaries of four prominent Americans in history. Benjamin Franklin was born January 17, 1706; Daniel Webster, January 18, 1782; Robert E. Lee, January 19, 1807, and Stonewall Jackson, January 21, 1824. William McKinley was born January 29, 1843. Theodore Roosevelt died January 6, 1919.

What a shame the Gettysburg high school basketball team could not overcome the one point lead with which Reading high won Saturday night on the local floor! It was all that stood between Gettysburg going into first place in the Central Pennsylvania Scholastic League. But if the high school retains the position of second place in the league at the end of the season, the entire community will have reason to feel proud. It is a fast, clean playing quintet that is representing Gettysburg on its high school basketball floor.

Gettysburg is on the proposed itinerary of a goodwill tour of central Pennsylvania counties planned by the Drum and Bugle Corps of York Post No. 127, American Legion. Gettysburg folk will recall the splendid showing made by this corps several years ago when the Albert J. Lentz Post of the American Legion held its monster Armistice Day celebration here.

The Church of the Brethren has decided to buy and remodel the former United Brethren church at Hampton instead of rebuilding the one destroyed by fire. It was decided to discontinue services in the Jr. O. U. A. M. hall at that place, as it is expected to have the remodeled church ready for worship within the next few weeks, and in the meantime Sunday School services will be held in the homes of members of the congregation.

According to news dispatches, Samuel J. Elker and Martha E. Aughinbaugh, both of Gettysburg, were granted a marriage license in Hagerstown last week.

Of 200 applications already sent to the state elections bureau at Harrisburg for nominating petition blanks, four were sent by residents of Adams county, indicating that that number of persons have about made up their minds to become candidates for congress or the house of representatives from this district, although only one has publicly announced himself. He is E. L. Weikert, Jr., who would succeed himself as Democratic member of the house at Harrisburg. D. C. Jacobs, Republican, Arendtsville, and Charles B. Dougherty, Democrat, Gettysburg, have been prominently mentioned as possible candidates for congress, but neither of them have made any public announcement.

Circulation of the petitions for signers may not be begun until January 25, and the last day for filing petitions with the state bureau is March 5.

For the offices of president and for United States senator petitions must be signed by at least 100 qualified voters in each of at least ten counties; for state-wide offices, delegates at large to the national conventions and member of the national committee petitions must have the signatures of at least 100 qualified electors in each of at least five counties; for representatives in congress, state senator and district delegates by at least 200 qualified electors in the districts; for state representatives by at least 100 qualified electors in the county, or if the county is divided into districts the signers must be voters in the district in which the petitioner is a candidate; for member of the state committee or an office to be voted for by the electors of an entire county, petitions must be signed by at least 100 qualified electors of the party in the county or district in which the petitioner is a candidate.

STATE FARMERS AMONG LEADERS IN PRODUCTION

Gain In Potato Crop Puts Pennsylvania Second In Relative Value For Nation.

Harrisburg, Jan. 16.—In spite of bad weather conditions existing during several of the most important spring and summer months, Pennsylvania farmers, in 1927, proved themselves among the best farmers in the United States, says the Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg. The total value of crops produced was estimated at $249,084,000, which is $660,000 more than that of all the New England States and New Jersey combined.

While the acre yield of corn—39.5 bushels—was below the five-year average, still this yield is three bushels more than was produced per acre in Iowa and 9.5 bushels more than in Illinois.

Second In Potatoes

The winter wheat crop, which with one exception was the lowest since 1911, was produced at the rate of 7.3 bushels more per acre than in Kansas. Likewise the acre yield of oats was three bushels more than in Iowa and 10.5 bushels more than in Illinois.

The potato crop was the most valuable produced in any state of the Union, excepting New York, and the acre yield of 120 bushels was the largest on record in Pennsylvania excepting 1923 when the yield was 123 bushels. The 1927 acre yield was 28 bushels more than in Wisconsin, 19 bushels more than in Minnesota, 40 bushels more than in Michigan and 14 bushels more than in New York—all of which are leading potato producing states.

The acre yield of tame hay—1.65 tons—is the highest on record for Pennsylvania and the total crop, with the exception of 1916, was the largest since the Civil War.

The buckwheat crop was the largest since 1921 and the acre yield the highest since 1912, giving the state first place in the production of this crop.

Rank of Pennsylvania

The acre yield of tobacco—1350 pounds—was the highest of any state, being 136 pounds more per acre than in Connecticut.

Pennsylvania's rank among all the states in crop production is as follows:
First in buckwheat.
First in cigar-leaf tobacco.
Fourth in potatoes (second in value).
Fourth in total apple crop (third in value).
Fifth in grapes.
Seventh in all tobacco.
Eighth in commercial apple crop.
Eighth in tame hay.
Eighth in pears.
Ninth in winter wheat.
Ninth in rye.
Ninth in peaches.
Twelfth in oats.
Seventeenth in corn.
Sixteenth in value of all crops.

Does It Pay To Advertise? Lookie Here!

Where's the Gettysburg business man who will say that advertising in the newspaper doesn't pay?

An Associated Press dispatch from Winston-Salem, North Carolina, contains the information that the annual statement just mailed to stockholders shows that the R. J. DULL ESTATE IS SOLD SATURDAY; USED FOR CHIMES

Proceeds From Auction Of Property Will Be Placed On Interest For A Time.

The proceeds of the sale of real estate and personal property of the late William H. Dull, of Gettysburg, held Saturday afternoon, totaled $3,616, according to Howard Hartley, one of the two trustees of St. James Lutheran church, who are acting as executors of Mr. Dull's estate.

Mr. Dull, who was found dead in bed at his home on Carlisle street, December 16, 1927, left the bulk of his estate to St. James Lutheran church for the purchase of a set of chimes.

The Dull property was purchased by John Eiker, of near Gettysburg, for $3,320. The personal property brought $296. G. R. Thompson was the auctioneer.

Mr. Hartley said today that Mr. Dull's estate would probably not exceed $4,000 after bequests of $100 each to Elias Lutheran church, Emmitsburg, and the Evergreen cemetery association here, estate taxes and expenses of administration are deducted. He indicated that the gross value of the estate would be around $5,000.

Mr. Hartley expressed doubt that the estate would be sufficient to purchase a set of chimes at once. It was indicated recently that if the net proceeds of the estate were insufficient to purchase chimes at once, the money would be placed on interest until a sum large enough to buy a suitable set of chimes had accumulated.

Chimes, it has been said, vary in price from $5,000 to $10,000 and upwards.

GAS IS FATAL TO THREE PERSONS

Couple to Have Been Married
Wednesday and Mother of Woman Asphyxiated.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Howard J. Wade, 25; Miss Ruth Dunlap and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Dunlap, were found asphyxiated in a house here early today.

Wade and Miss Dunlap were to have been married Wednesday and the house where they were found dead was to have been their future home. The three went there yesterday to fix up the place.

The bodies were found by Harold Dunlap, 18, who becoming alarmed at the absence of his mother and sister hurried to the new house with his brother and sister-in-law.

Police believe that Miss Dunlap became ill from carbon monoxide gas, caused by a small gas heater which had used the oxygen in the apartment and went into a bedroom to rest. Her mother accompanied her and sat on the foot of the bed. Then, the police say, mother and daughter became unconscious and Wade finding them thus had started to the kitchen to get water when death overtook him.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The reaction in stock prices which set in Saturday was resumed when the market opened today. Execution of a large number of week-end selling orders brought about recessions of a point or so for favorite stocks. There was nothing in the news to influence the selling movement which was taken to represent the correction of a top-heavy speculative position.

the Pennsylvania territory. Such advertising must tell of all the wonders of Pennsylvania, its perfect roads, scenic beauty, historic shrines and resorts and must tell it in such a way that it will create the urge for the man in Chicago or anywhere else to see Pennsylvania. It is this form of advertising that the hotelmen of Pennsylvania have joined in producing, the broad theory being that in order to increase business the business must be brought into the state and once here all localities, all hotels and all business will derive its share of patronage.

"This unified action does not prevent or curtail the individual hotel's following the second aspect of advertising being that of attracting the motorist to a particular hotel when he is in the territory."

Aid Is Mutual
According to Mr. Scharf the beginning, even in a small way, of co-operating in exploiting Pennsylvania as a state to the motoring public was so enthusiastically received that two guests of the convention—a hotelman from the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia and another from New York state—contributed substantial sums to the fund.

"This action showed great foresight on the part of these two individuals. Being located as neighbors to Pennsylvania they readily saw that anything done to benefit Pennsylvania and increase the volume of tourist traffic through this state would help them as definite proportions of the business brought into Pennsylvania would find its way into the lake resorts of New York state and into the Shenandoah Valley," explained Mr. Scharf.

"The fact there is keen competition in attracting tourists to different states and localities was well emphasized by the reports of the endeavors of various other state publicity bureaus. It's purely a matter of going out after the business and despite the natural advantages that any state or historic shrine has this competition must be met by telling the world about it."

"We like to refer to Gettysburg as the nation's greatest shrine. No doubt about it, it still is. Every year we talk about the differences over the year and years before and many Gettysburgians who motor through the country relate their observations of what other towns and localities are doing. Every year we decide what should be done, but unfortunately for some reason or reasons we never seem able to get done what we all agree should be done."

"Gettysburg is the biggest little city in the world and in the final analysis we are all just as proud of it as we can be."

Urges Participation
"However, the fact remains that we must enter into this competitive field to hold our own and advance ourselves. Our differences are essentially imaginary for after all we individually are successful only in proportion to our success as a whole."

"The program of unified effort in exploiting Pennsylvania is merely a graduated proposition of the program that we should follow—that of unified effort in placing and keeping the historic shrine of Gettysburg—which is our natural heritage—before the public. If we bring them here in sufficient numbers we will all get our share."

"To hold our place in the state Gettysburg should participate in the program of advertising the state of Pennsylvania," concluded Mr. Scharf.

GIRL STUDENT MISSING 3 DAYS

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Several hundred police and Boy Scouts started a search yesterday for Miss Frances St. John Smith, 18, a Smith college freshman and daughter of a wealthy New York broker, who has been missing since Friday morning.

Her father, St. John Smith, of 129 East 70th street, New York, has offered a $1000 reward for information which would result in finding the girl. While the posses of police and Boy Scouts searched the vicinity, college authorities started draining Paradise pond on the Smith college campus.

The girl's disappearance is similar to that of Alice Corbett, 19, of Utica, N. Y., who was never seen again after she vanished from Smith college on November 13, 1925. Both students disappeared on Friday the 13th.

GOOD ACTS WILL APPEAR IN CIRCUS

Odd Fellows' Indoor Show Will Bring Many Novelties to Gettysburg.

Interest in the Odd Fellows' Indoor Circus which will be staged nightly in the Hotel Gettysburg gymnasium from January 19 to 30, inclusive, is increasing daily, according to those in charge, and is spreading like wild-fire throughout Adams county.

One of the many features of the Indoor Circus, a novelty in the entertainment line for Gettysburg, will be a popularity contest in which patrons of the circus will be asked to vote for a "Miss Gettysburg, Queen of the Circus." Three diamond rings have been secured as prizes for the winner and two girls receiving the second and third highest number of votes in the contest.

The popularity contest will be formally launched Monday when the names of girls nominated for the title will be announced.

Ten circus acts will be presented nightly and, in addition, there will be dancing, all for the one admission. All of the acts have been recruited from the "big tops" and will be well worth the price of admission, it is stated.

A list of the acts was made public today at circus headquarters in the Hotel Gettysburg annex. The artists and their specialties follow:

Charles Hunt, aerial display on the flying trapeze; Miss Hazel Williams, swinging ladder; the Damm Brothers, clowns; Mlle. Olivelette, slack wire artist; the Four DeHommans, acrobatic tumbler; Mlle. Vortex, aerial butterfly; Otto and Mae, Roman aerial rings; Miss Miriam Hunt, butterfly dance on the rolling globe; Mme. Lucille, exponent of contortion; Laura-bella Barretta, peer of lady punchers; Miss Lillian Thelma Alton, soprano, late of the Sells-Floto circus; the Malone Trio, on the revolving ladder.

WRECK BIG STILL NEAR DEERFIELD

Frederick County Sheriff Raids
Moonshiners; Two Are Arrested.

Hidden in the mountains at Rock House Hollow, near Deerfield, Frederick county, and daily turning out a large quantity of liquor, which found its way through bootlegging channels to consumers, many of whom are believed to be residents of Adams county and adjoining communities, one of the largest stills ever to be raided by Sheriff William C. Roderick and his staff of Frederick county was wrecked last Wednesday.

Raymond McAfee, 22, near Sabillasville, and William Johnson, Richmond, Virginia, the latter colored, on the premises when the officers swooped down on them, were found guilty of unlawful manufacture of liquor when tried before Justice Alton Y. Bennett Thursday afternoon. They are in custody of the sheriff pending sentence.

Raymond Chebs and Ross Smith, both of Sabillasville, caught in the raid, were found not guilty. They said they had been invited to visit the property and had been given quantities of liquor for their own consumption.

The entire still property, which included a modernly equipped house, was destroyed by the sheriff.

An inventory of the still property included:
One still house, one 800-gallon still, one 300-gallon trumper, one oil, 14,400 gallons of mash, 18 1000-gallon vats, nine 10 gallon kegs of liquor, 25 gallons of liquor in a tub, two one-gallon jugs of whisky, 38 pounds of yeast, two 50-gallon barrels, 100 feet three-inch hose, five empty 10-gallon kegs, one 50-gallon charred barrel, six 10-gallon charred kegs, large quantity of granulated sugar, one large water hose, one horse and wagon, one set of harness.

Long in Operation
The still, although both McAfee and Johnson said they were ignorant of its term of service, had been in operation, officers feel, for a long period of time. The two convicted men said that the plant had a daily capacity of 70 gallons but the equipment was of such size that in all probability the output at times reached 125 gallons a day.

COOLIDGE GIVEN LARGE OVATION

Promises Aid of United States in Helping to Bring Good Will Among Nations.

Havana, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The helping hand of the United States in the solution of the problems that beset the nations of the new world was extended by President Calvin Coolidge today as he opened the sixth Pan-American congress.

In his address, he dedicated his government to work for international confidence, helpfulness and good will. He spoke in the national theatre before the representatives of 21 nations of the western hemisphere.

As the spokesman of a country on equal plane with her sister republics, the president of the United States gave assurance that his government was prepared to encourage all peaceful pursuits that would bring the American family of states into closer and more permanent harmony. Although he spoke in English to a predominantly Spanish understanding audience, Mr. Coolidge was frequently interrupted by prolonged applause which seemed an echo of the ovation with which he was acclaimed on his way to the theatre.

The great throng cheered and clapped their hands at several points in his address, laying stress on hope for peace in the new world, and rose from their seats several times to add weight to their enthusiasm.

ment, whose motor apparatus ought to be tested occasionally and whose gallant volunteer fire-fighters ought to receive exercise and drill once in awhile. This was demonstrated last week when several brush fires called out the eager firemen on as many different occasions.

"Concerning Fires," a burlesque on fire fighting and an interesting comparison on fires in the city and fires in the country community, under the name of Don Rose, and appearing in a metropolitan newspaper Sunday, makes interesting reading. Says Mr. Rose:

"Having a fire is like having an operation. There is really no great fun in it, but it does make conversation. A fire reveals to the full the social and helpful instincts of the neighbors.

"It is no wonder that we have fires. For the sake of our comfort and convenience, we have made a slave of a giant and piled indignities upon him by treating him too casually. Fire obeys the rub of a match as another of the geni obeyed the rub of a lamp. Fire purrs quietly on our hearth, while its dangerous breath streams up through the walls of our house. Fire burns hot in our cellars, wrapped in a jacket of steel. Cold fire runs silent and unseen through every electric wire and leaps to life at the touch of a button.

"So to teach us better manners and reasonable respect for the gifts of the gods there are fires now and then. Sometimes we cannot stay their quick hunger and there is left a monument of grim gray ashes and blackened bones of what was once a home, and many dead hopes and ambitions gone with it. But more often, since most of us are lucky beyond our deserts, a fire brings more excitement than hazard and, at the worst, an argument with the insurance adjuster.

"As a social diversion, a fire has a better opportunity in a small community than in a city. It was not always thus. A century ago a fire might resolve into a fraternal fight between rival companies laying claim to it. Fire-fighting focused friendships and antipathies and led by natural law to political organization. There was also plenty that was picturesque though not much that was efficient in a fire engine that was operated by hand, in a fashion like that employed in resuscitating the semi-drowned. A fire in those days had better than a sporting chance of winning the argument.

"Today a city fire has a fine accompaniment of shrieking sirens and shrill whistles and the roar of great engines through streets that clear like magic before the thundering juggernauts of salvation. But the hardened city dweller will rarely turn aside to follow. The fire is probably at the other end of town; the chances are, moreover, that it will soon be smothered, and in any case it will be turned into a private party for policemen and firemen.

"But in the country a fire is everybody's business. At the clang of the hammer on the split tire or the wail of the new-fangled siren the community stops work unanimously. The inhabitants of the stricken dwelling, striving to escape, are swept back by the inrush of neighbors intent on salvage. The first instinct is to carry everything out—a throwback to the days when a house on fire was a house doomed. In a miraculously short time, the lawn, the road and the neighboring porches are piled high.

"The volunteer fire company arrives at last, somewhat delayed by the fact that the chief could not find his boots. A hose is unrolled; extinguishers are demounted; axes appear on all sides. A frontal attack is made on the fire; it is drenched in chemicals, drowned in water, trampled under rubber boots. It never has a chance; it cringes and disappears. The brave firemen pursue it. They tear open walls and floors and ceilings. They unlimber more extinguishers and shoot them hither and yon; they get them started and cannot get them stopped. It is all very exciting.

"Country and suburban communities have recently broken out with modernism and now have fire-fighting machines to match their city cousins. We have done so ourselves, replacing our hose reel and chemical tanks with a monster of red paint and shining brass. We were properly conscious of our responsibilities and organized and incorporated ourselves, and drilled and demonstrated and led the Fourth of July parade and everything, but found ourselves short of good fires for practice purposes. Furthermore, ours is an engine that can pump 500 gallons of water a minute, but in the country district which we guard and protect there is rarely more than three minutes' worth of water to be pumped.

"The howl of the siren called me forth one bitter winter's night to ride to the rescue of a flaming barn. By right of early arrival I got possession of the nozzle, thus achieving one of my minor ambitions. But I had neglected to put on chains, and when the hose came to life under pressure, my rubber boots forgot to whom they belonged and started home across the icy snow in diverse directions. Moreover, the hose became unaccountably recalcitrant, if you get what I mean. I felt like Laocoon and all his relatives arguing with a boa-constrictor, I could not hold on to it and I certainly dared not let go. So I thought about it while I slid around and finally decided that since I was getting nowhere definite I had better let go. So I let go, and the hose immediately turned on me and socked me in the midriff with an icy stream, and I slid gracefully and easily on my rubber coat clear down the hill, with the hose wriggling after me and spouting gloriously. And no doubt I should have drowned in the path of duty, for the man at the pump was trampling on the accelerator; but at that moment the water ran out and the party was over, so far as we were concerned. So they took me home, and I thawed myself out and resigned from the fire company.

"And now I content myself with taking pride in our fine new engine, and particularly in the left rear shock absorber, which about represents my contribution to its purchase, and I leave its operation to others."

BEWARE OF MARRIED MEN BY ARLINE DEHAAS

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
"BEWARE OF MARRIED MEN," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Myra Martin, secretary to Leonard Gilbert, a divorce lawyer to whom she is engaged, discovers that her younger sister, Helene, has become infatuated with Huntley Sheldon, a wealthy Don Juan whose wife, Nina, is making a fourth attempt to divorce him. Myra looks Helene in her room, discovers her, and goes to Sheldon's hunting lodge to ask him to give up his sister. Sheldon recognizes Myra and pretends a heart attack, forcing her to remain with him all night. Next morning Nina and her detective arrive, but Myra escapes without being identified. Then she finds that Helene has eloped with Ralph Naylor.

"Well, it seems that your sister got locked in, somehow," the girl laughed. "She didn't quite seem to know how it all happened, herself, and the doors haven't spring locks. I was on the desk myself, and about nine o'clock I had a call from the people in the apartment below yours, complaining of noise on your floor. They said someone was hammering right on the floor, and it sounded as though the ceiling was coming through. So I sent one of the boys up to investigate, and he told me that when he got up to your door he heard some one screaming and pounding."

"How terrible. Helene must have been very frightened."

"O, she didn't seem frightened at all," the girl explained. "She was mad, but she soon got over that. It was the boy who was frightened."

How safe she felt here.

He came running down and asked me for the pass key, and said that it sounded as though some one was being murdered. He got one of the other boys to go up with him, and they let themselves into the apartment. They talked to your sister through the door, and she explained about being locked in, so they got another pass key, and opened the door for her. She had been pounding on the floor, trying to attract some one's attention."

"I'm sorry that you had so much disturbance," Myra apologized. "I can't imagine how Helene ever did such a thing. But she's so careless. She might have locked the door herself and then lost the key."

"I don't know, and she was so excited about running off that I didn't ask her about it."

"Well, she made a wreck of the closet door. That'll have to be mended."

"All right, Miss Martin. I'll send some one to fix it for you, if you want me to."

"I wish you would. And thank you for all your trouble. I'm glad I found out what happened."

"O, that's all right, Miss Martin. I hope your sister's very happy."

"I'm sure she will be. Good bye."

Myra returned to her apartment with a light heart. Everything had turned out well after all, and Helene had very wisely kept quiet about it all. She took up a book and began to read.

CHAPTER X

Bright and early on Monday morning Myra was at her desk, beginning her week's work. The Sunday evening spent at home, alone, without the bright chatter of Helene, had seemed very dull and drear, but Myra reminded herself that she must get used to it. For she would still have many evenings to spend at home, and alone, until she and Leonard were married. The thought brought back the faint shiver of fear that kept clutching at her throat. If Leonard ever found out—

But now, with the familiar office surroundings about her she felt more secure, more like her old self.

A note that morning from Helene, too, had helped raise her spirits. It was characteristic of her sister, being very vague about everything that was happening and full of thrilling messages. She and Ralph were on a short motor tour, going across the border, probably. They had been married late Saturday night in some little town. Helene wasn't quite sure where, with a license that Ralph had been keeping on hand in case of emergency. Anyhow, they weren't going to stay away long, because Ralph had to get back to his business, so they'd both see Myra very shortly, and Ralph sent his love.

And now Leonard had come in and Myra stood talking to him in his private office.

"Leonard, Helene's eloped with Ralph Naylor," Myra was telling all the news of the week end—at least, most of it. "I was out Saturday evening, having dinner and doing some shopping, and when I came in, about ten o'clock, I found a note from Helene, telling me that she had gone off with Ralph."

"Well, Naylor's a nice chap. I like him," Leonard answered. "And I think Helene will be very happy with him. I do hope he doesn't try to reform her and make her grow up—she's so lovely, just as she is."

"Yes, isn't she," Myra agreed heartily and truthfully. "But I do hate to see her married so young. She seems more like a child to me than a grown up person. I suppose that's because I'm older, and I've always had more responsibility. But, now that she's done it, I'm glad. I always did worry about her a little, especially after she got out of school."

"O, Helene's all right. She'll get along like a housewife. And I am rather glad, too, because now you won't have to worry about her, and you can spend more time thinking about our wedding. How about that?" Gilbert laughed and kissed her cheek.

"Yes, perhaps it is better," Myra answered, laughing, too. How very safe she felt here, with Leonard's kindness and his love seeming to shut out those blurred spots of that awful night that now receded into the dim distance. "I had a letter from Helene this morning, and she said they'd been married Saturday night—she didn't quite know where, and they were motoring. They'll be back, soon, though. But the apartment was so lonely on Sunday night without her."

"Never mind. It won't be that way long. We'll get things settled for ourselves very soon, now," Leonard comforted.

"O, but you haven't heard the funniest part of the story, Leonard," Myra laughed. "Yes, she could laugh now, she thought, and tell the story without many qualms of misgiving. 'It seems that Helene got herself locked into her bedroom, in some way—no one knows quite how, but you know how careless she is with her things, and she may have lost the key or something. And when she couldn't get out, she pounded on the floor until the people in the apartment below sent in a complaint to the desk, and then the elevator boys came up with the pass key and finally rescued her.'

"Well, it's a good thing she has some one to look after her," Gilbert smiled, "and keep her from getting locked up again."

"Yes, isn't it?" There, that went off all right, Myra told herself. Now the worst was over. Helene should never know the rest of the story, and the secret lay between two people, and in so far as Myra was concerned, it would always remain a secret.

"O, by the way—you got in touch with Evans, didn't you. His wife's case comes up today," Gilbert was returning to the business of the hour.

"Yes, I phoned him, and he said he would not appear to contest the case. Then I phoned Mrs. Evans and she promised that she'd be here at two o'clock promptly."

"I want to go over the papers on the case again. Lord, there's a nasty one," he pulled open a drawer and took out of the files a bundle of papers. He sat down at his desk and began leafing through them and reading them.

"Do you want me to wait?" Myra asked.

"Yes, please. There may still be some work to do on them."

Myra stood patiently beside the desk awaiting instructions. Gilbert read and reread, and the more he read the more deeply he began to frown. Finally he pushed the papers away disgusted.

"God, what a rotten case. It almost makes me sick," he looked up at Myra, shaking his head.

"Yes, it is, isn't it?" Myra agreed unthinkingly.

"How I detest these 'other women.' I'm glad Evans isn't going to contest it—he told me he wouldn't, though. I hate to argue this stuff out. This way makes it so much easier. I feel rather sorry for Mrs. Evans. She seems like a nice sort of person. Why women can't let other women's husbands alone is more than I can understand." Gilbert spoke harshly, but with a certain tone of pride, as though nothing of that sort could ever happen to him.

Maroon and White Loses Fast Game by Margin of One Point to Reading

Battle Nip - And - Tuck With League Leaders Saturday Night; Score 41-40.

In one of the most exciting and best played games ever staged in the high school gymnasium, Reading high nosed out Gettysburg high 41-40, in a thrilling league game on Saturday night before the largest crowd of the season. Reading thus kept its first place position as well as extending its consecutive winnings to eight straight.

"Shorty" Warren dropped a peep through for the first score and Dracha sent a long one through to knot the count. The Maroons battled their way into the lead with the Reading team scoring just as regularly. In the final second of the first period Dracha dropped a short shot in to give Reading a 13-12 advantage at the first period. With Joe Sadler and Bream leading the assault in the second quarter, the Martinmen piled up a big lead only to have Reading make a spurt and draw close, the half ending 20-17 with the battlefield boys in front.

The Martinmen swept the visitors off their feet in the start of the third quarter with a fast offense, capably led by Captain Sadler. At the middle of the third period the locals led 30-19. This lead melted fast when Wickie and Dracha broke loose, but the Maroons were out in front 33-29 at the start of the last quarter. Myers looped a goal soon after the opening of the period, Warren having gone out via the foul rule. The playing was furious during this period with Reading steadily creeping closer. With five minutes to go Reading suddenly took the lead 35-34. Buohl, who replaced Bream when the latter was banished on account of fouls, set the locals ahead with a shot but Nittinger placed the Pretzel Benders ahead with another goal. With two minutes to go, Reading led 40-37. Buohl netted a goal and Dracha a foul. Buohl sunk a foul as the game ended.

Captain John Sadler put up his usual steady game and kept the Martinmen in the running by his consistent foul tossing. Bream put up a good game at guard while substitutes Buohl and Myers made good relief men. Gilbert, Warren and Joe Sadler also flashed some good playing. Dracha and Nittinger were the big guns for the victors.

In order to remedy the present inactivity in swimming, regular beginners' classes, under the supervision of Professor Bilheimer, will be instituted in the near future.

Instruction will be given to those students who cannot swim and to those who can. Only the fundamental principles of the sport will be taught to the beginners, while for those who already know how to swim, the lessons will endeavor to improve their present ability.

Boxing practice has begun in earnest since the holidays. Coach "Haps" Frank has been giving instructions in the regular physical education classes and also to a small squad that promises to be the nucleus of a regular boxing team.

Inter-collegiate competition will not be entered into this year, inter-class matches being the feature of the coming season. However, next year Frank will organize a team for inter-collegiate matches. Wrestling and tumbling will not be coached on a large scale this year, but next year a regular coaching class will be inaugurated.

The new gym equipment was ordered about the middle of November, but has not yet arrived. It will be the most modern available, consisting of several painted boxing mats, which are washable, a horizontal bar, and a vaulting bar, portable wrestling mats, indoor jumping standards, a climbing rope 25 feet in length, and volley ball equipment.

In keeping with its progressive policy the college is about to embark upon another expedition, this time being carried into a new sea, namely, that of music. A Gettysburg College Song Book is the goal to be achieved.

Since there has been considerable evidence on the part of the student body that it enjoys group singing it has been necessary to lay plans for compiling a book of songs in order to enable the policy of regular days for group singing to be instituted.

Under the present system the students do very little singing, practicing for just a week or two previous to Mothers' and Fathers' days.

The book, which must be realized before the plan of regular group singing can be put into effect, is to embody songs of colleges all over the country and in addition, no less than thirty strictly Gettysburg songs. At present there are available about only ten songs. It will be necessary, therefore, for both undergraduates and alumni who are particularly gifted in this line to compose music and verse and send same to Doctor Kramer.

The need for this book is evident and it is the hope of those interested that every one will cooperate in making it a success.

Out of the Past

Happenings of Days Gone by as Chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times, the Files Reveal.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

A stranger, apparently about 45 years of age, of genteel appearance, came to Mrs. Winnett's inn, in this town on Monday morning last, and complaining an indisposition, was shown to a room—where he remained during the day—and it is supposed took a quantity of opium, as some of the article was found in his pocket. He was discovered in an insensible state in the evening, and every means were used to relieve him in vain—he died in a few hours. There was nothing about him to lead to a discovery of his name, or whence he came. He had stated he had traded to New Orleans. In his hat were some paintings, and in his pocketbook were written these lines—

Let me live, and let me die,
And never a stone tell where I lie.

We shall next week conclude Mr. Clay's address—to make room for a considerable portion of which—we have this week published a supplement containing advertisements. We have never read any document which carried such complete conviction with it. It is backed by testimony which cannot be impeached—not the least of which is that of good Lafayette—part of which will be found in the address, near the latter part of what is contained in this day's paper. We have heard even a Jacksonian exclaim: "We will have to give up the Bargain and Sale business—and depend solely upon the sounding praises of Gen. Jackson."

South America.—Intelligence has been received at New York, from Havana, that the King of Spain has acknowledged the independence of South America. A letter from a respectable gentleman at Havana, dated the 24th of December, says that the report was generally believed at that place.

New Orleans, Dec. 12.
The accounts which have just reached here from Mexico, through the channel of Spanish letters, are gloomy in the extreme. The law of banishment has been generally adopted in the Mexican states, and the general government had either tacitly or openly concurred. In consequence twelve hundred Spaniards were preparing to leave the capital. In the city of Guadalajara, the Spaniards had been very roughly handled by the mob. Two hundred Spaniards would embark in a few days for Vera Cruz, in American vessels, from New York and New Orleans. They bring with them about half a million of dollars.

A new mode of administering medicine is now rapidly gaining ground in Germany. Instead of the large doses prescribed in this country, very minute quantities are given and it seems frequently with good effect. So small quantity of blue pills as the 50th part of a grain is sometimes administered, and of sulphate of quinine, of which the ordinary dose here is 3 or 4 grains—1-20th part of the grain is ordered. It is difficult to conceive how so little medicine produces a sensible effect; but if it is really found to answer, the practice must be very beneficial to debilitated persons who in this country are frequently sent to the grave by medicine.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Married.—On the 6th inst., by the Rev. Jacob Ziegler, Mr. Henry Long, of Mountjoy township, and Miss Hannah M. Bowman, of Mountpleasant township.

On the same day, by the same, Mr. William J. Miller, of Indiana (formerly of Gettysburg), and Miss Agnes McCreary, of Franklin township.
On the 21st ult., at Eaton, Ohio, by the Rev. D. Kemper, Mr. Samuel Bell White, of Gettysburg, and Miss Justina, youngest daughter of Mr. M. Wilbert, of Eaton, Ohio.

The extraordinary mildness of the present season was broken in upon, on Wednesday and Thursday, by a rough, disagreeable snow storm.

We notice that the citizens of Hagerstown are agitating the practicability of reaching the Baltimore market by building a railroad from that place across the South Mountain to Westminster and thence to intersect with the Baltimore and Susquehanna Road—a formidable undertaking to say the least. Would not the completion of the already partially graded road between Hagerstown and Gettysburg be more practicable, and at least equally desirable by the people of that region.

New Territories Proposed.—The organization of three new territories has already been proposed in Congress. The subdivision of Oregon and the formation of a new territory north of Columbia river to be called Columbia Territory—also the Territories of Platte and Nebraska. It is not at all surprising that the planners of the capital extension at Washington should have so designed the Senate chamber as to accommodate one hundred Senators. The extra desks will be needed before the building grows old.

The Railroad Movement.—The unexpected success of the effort now being made to secure subscriptions for the railroad from this place to some point in the line of improvements in York county has diffused general confidence among the friends of the enterprise as to its ultimate accomplishment. That the road will be made seems to be regarded as a fixed fact. Whether the road shall go to Hagerstown or direct to York bids fair to be the real question to be decided. We believe the subscriptions already reach near $60,000, with full two-thirds of the county yet to canvass. The liberal subscription in the borough has been in part responded to and we hope to see the good work go on. A number of our farmers have taken from $500 to $1,000 in stock, and in one or two instances we believe this latter mark has been exceeded. But auspicious as the beginning has been the movement must not be permitted to drag. There is nothing like "striking when the iron is hot!" There is a growing good feeling that must not be smothered by inaction. Unflinching perseverance is ever the price of success. Let every individual in the county regard himself as a particular friend of the enterprise and join hands with his neighbor in the effort to push it forward.

REASON AND PITY ARGUE WITH A MAN

Reason whispered: "Answer 'no'."
Pity whispered: "Answer 'yes'."
You have heard his tale of woe,
You can see he's in distress."

Reason argued: "You're a fool,
Send him on! Be brief and brisk,
Use good judgment and be cool,
Why should you assume the risk?"

"You have burdens of your own,
You, yourself, are deep in debt,
Why should you now make a loan
To a man you've never met?"

Pity argued: "Help him out!
Means to do it you can find,
Reason always dwells in doubt,
Reason always is unkind."

Pity said: "Go on and do
What will serve this fellow's need,
If it weren't for fools like you
Cold would be the world, indeed!"

Pity's "yes," and Reason's "no,"
Torn between the two he stood,
Then he did the thing, and lo!
Both exclaimed: "We knew you would!"

Dog Hill Paragraphs

Washington Hocks says home life, according to a lot of writers and talkers, has been broken down and destroyed, because people won't stay at home; but he reads in adjacent columns of the papers and magazines where thousands upon thousands of new and modern homes are being built every day. He says the upshot of the whole business is that the people of other days would have gone around just like they do now if they had had any way to travel except walk.

Well, I'm glad to say that the ice didn't crack, as I feared it might in the last story, and Uncle Lucky and his bunny nephew soon safely crossed over the frozen river. But, Oh dear me! The bank on that side was so steep that the Sledmobile began to balk; then it stopped altogether and just wouldn't budge.
"What shall we do?" cried perplexed Uncle Lucky.
"I'll help you," answered a kind voice, and on looking around, the little piggy was seen to be on his way home from school.

"All the morning in our school
We have sung the Golden Rule,
'Do to others as you'd like
Them to do.' My name is Mike;
I'm a little Irish pig,
Now, watch me do a funny jig," and he began to caper about, first on one leg and then on the other, and finally, he stood on his head.

Well, Sir, those two little rabbits laughed so merrily, and so long, that they forgot all about the scrape they were in until, all of a sudden, the little piggy became serious and asked: "Did I promise to help you?"

"So you did," admitted the forgetful old gentleman rabbit. "But I'm afraid you can't push the Sledmobile up the bank."

"I know I can't, but I'll get some one who can," answered the little pig, and off he ran. Pretty soon he came back with a long-eared animal.

"This is Mr. Mule," said the little pig, introducing his friend to the little rabbits.

"How do you do, Mr. Mule," said dear Uncle Lucky, politely raising his old wedding stovetop hat, while the equally polite little rabbit lifted his khaki cap.

RADIO CONTROLS STREET LIGHTING

Lamps in Residential Suburb of San Francisco Are Controlled By Newest Method.

San Francisco.—(AP)—A radio wave, riding a 4,000-volt electric distribution wire, lights and extinguishes street lamps in one of San Francisco's residence districts.

The new method, known as the carrier current street light control, was originated in Schenectady, New York, home of the General Electric company, but the Pacific Gas and Electric company of San Francisco is the first lighting corporation in the United States to give it a trial in actual public service. So far it has worked well, and it continues to do so radio is to be used for control of all the street lights of the city operated by the company.

The old method, still in use outside the experimental district, requires a separate circuit which is fed from a switch in a substation and can be used only for street lighting. Necessity for separate lines arose from the fact that if street lamps and residence lights were on the same circuit houses would go dark at the same time street lights were turned out.

Carrier current light control overcomes the old obstacle. A device called a capacitor hooks up on a line at a substation and super-imposes a high frequency current that merely uses the line as a path and in no way interferes with the load it carries to residence lights. Lines of any voltage may be used, as all lines look alike to high frequency current. The new method controls 916 lights. As the radio wave used has a length of 9,000 meters, far above all broadcasting bands, it does not interfere in any way with transmitting stations.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BEYOND

AS this Talk is being written Miss Carol Hovius, a young girl of 20, is visiting the great galleries of Europe feverishly filling her mind with every bit of beauty possible to crowd in during a brief space of time. Gardens, art centres, historic scenes, cities and people are being noted. The fading lights in these eyes will search as few eyes ever do. This girl is storing her mind to the brim, fortifying herself against the dark years to come, for she has been told that she has but a year at the most in which she will retain her sight.

And so this heroic girl has accepted her fate, without a murmur, determined to gather wealth in beauty that she may be a useful and helpful member in the world.

An honor graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, she taught school for a year in Iowa, when at Christmas time a year ago she was told by experts that she was afflicted with a rare disease that would blind her for life.

But there was no delaying. The world must be seen—as much of it as possible—so that in her life beyond the light she might give, in her way, of what she had. Already she has written back to friends—but no mention of her approaching night.

It is said that she is a poetess of promise. Perhaps, in her blindness, she will be able to see much that we, with our seeing eyes, fail to see. I am thinking of Helen Keller, who was born blind, but who graduated from a great college with high honors and who has been such an inspiring, beautiful character in this world.

Just to inherit the light is to be born rich. But with this light if there is inbred a desire to see and understand, a craving for the beautiful in Nature and people's hearts, then one is more than merely blessed.

If you carry beauty in your mind and heart, there are worlds and worlds beyond!

Applied Bands Square The Hypothecase Of Style

YEARS ago designers thought of costumes as quilts to cover hour glasses, but it's different today. Today we are walking expressions of artistic ideas. Costumes are designed in a real sense, and all the arts and sciences are expressed in them. Take geometry—the important new diagonal line effected by the joining of this shirt, and emphasized by an applied band of fabric across the front is pure Euclid. And its simplicity and cool smartness are undeniable. It need not remain strictly tailored, either. Instead of cashmere, twill or jersey, which with trimming bands of silk crepe or darker self material would make a charming "warm" dress; crepe de chine with velvet bands to match or two shades of the always popular satin crepe serves for a lovely frock distinguished by its simplicity and good lines. The back and button trim are in notes.

AMUSEMENT

"HER WILD OAT" IS FILM IN WHICH COLLEEN MOORE STARS

Larry Kent's stock has made a new high record with his selection by John McCormick, producer of Colleen Moore's starring pictures, for the leading male role in her support in "Her Wild Oat," the new picture at the Strand theatre, tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, which Marshall Neilan directed.

This is the most important part entrusted to the young leading man in his short but successful career in Hollywood. McCormick has unlimited confidence in Kent and predicts a brilliant future for him.

Kent came to Hollywood two years ago after leaving the medical college of the University of California. The day he reached Hollywood he landed a job in two-reel pictures. Then came juvenile leads in "McFadden's Flats," "The Sea Tiger," "Barbed Wire" and other productions. He has light brown hair, blue eyes and is a first rate athlete. He served in the United States Navy during the war, which was natural enough inasmuch as he was born at sea.

He was one of a dozen prospective leading men who were given screen tests for the part.

The story of "Her Wild Oat" combines New York and a fashionable seaside resort as its locale, and is a sparkling comedy-drama from the pen of Howard Irving Young. Gerald C. Duffy wrote the screen play.
